The Bonaparist committee, or club of the beaux arts, is making great progress and give considerable annoyance to the club of the Rue de Poictiers, from among whose members it is formed. Its avowed object is to support and advance the policy announced by the President. It is stated that the President of the republic intends giving a grand ball at the Tuilleries on the night of the 19th December, the anniversary of his election to his present office. It is even added that he purposes taking up his residence in the same ex-royal palace during the

An almost complete change in the diplomatic and consulate corps is again spoken of.

M. Guizot is at present one of the lions of Paris, and M. Guizot is at present one of the lions of Paris, and walks about the streets apparently as unconcerned as in the palmiest days of Louis Philippe. He has been visited by G. M. Dumon, General Moline de St. You, Admiral MacKau, and M. Duchatel. M. Pierre Bonaparte left Zantcha in Algeria the other day, with orders from General D'Herbillon to proceed to the Governor General to press the arrival of the reinforcements which he expected. The reinforcements were met by M. Bonaparte, as they were proceeding to join General D'Herbillon, but M. Bonaparte, instead of returning with them to Zantcha, took ship at Philippeville and returned to France. This breach of discipline being calculated to form a very bad example, the Moniteur contains a decree signed by the President of the republic, by virtue of which M. Pierre Bonaparte is cashiered, and thus deprived of his rank of chef de batallon of the foreign African legion.

Last week a tremendous fall of rain took place in the Montmine Noire, not far from Cannes. The fields and gardens were inundated, and vast damage done.

There is a decided division in the socialist camp at Paris. M. Pierre Leroux, one of the noted socialists, publishes a long letter in the Republique against his old for inch, Proudhon, whom he calls an atheist, and an antisocialist, and a Malthusian.

The new prefect of the department of Gershass suspended the mayor of Marciae from his functions and dissolved, the association of operatives.

The only item of general interest in the Assembly during the week was the rejection of the sixteenth of the hill granting an additional salary of twenty thousand, as table money, to the Vice President of the republic, M. Boulsy de la Mearthe.

It is supposed the rejection was intended as a signification to the President of the feelings produced on the majority by his message.

It is reported that in consequence of an angry discussion in the Assembly on Wednesslay, housile messages have been exchanged between M. M. Segur D'Agnessan to the Mando for the provident of the feelings produced on the majority by his message.

It is also said that a similar message was sent by M. Pierre Bonaparte to M. Darrien, editor of the Lemps, and to other editors.

miles NE. of Guatemala, buried in a dense forest and far from any settlements, a ruined city surpassing Copan and Palenque in extent and magnificence, and displaying a degree of art to which none of the structures of Yucatan can lay claim. The government of Guatemala sent a commission to examine it; but their investigations were soon interrupted by the civil commotions of the country, and they were only able to bring away some rude plans and imperfect drawings. I shall go there as soon as my duties will permit. I learn also of other interesting monuments near by, in Honduras and San Salvador, of which no public mention has yet been made. I shall pay all the attention I can to these, although there is too much for one man to hope to do well. But "here goes," notwithstanding.

a benefit, which is yet immeasurably expanding itself, and will continue to expand itself through all countries and through all times. What are the conquests and attractions of the whole corporation of captains, from Walter the Pennyless to Napoleon Bonaparte, compared with these movable types of Faust? Tuly, it is a mortilying thing for your conqueror to reflect how perishable is the metal which he hammers with such violence; how the kind earth will soon shroud up his bloody foot-prints; and

DRESS AND CHARACTER OF PERUVIAN LADIES.—A recent letter from Lima, after describing the Cathedral, gives this portraiture of the ladies:

About the certire of the Cathedral is an orchestra, enclosed by columns and a lattice of carved work; it is very extensive, contains two immense organs, a full instrumental band, and choir of cunuchs. The music is usually of a high and operatic character, and very fine. All the galleries and assages are lined with old scriptural paintings by the Italian masters, many of them of great merit; but enough of this. When I first visited it, it was at early mass, and under the main arch gradually collected all the lashino and beauty of Linna; each lady was accompanied by a small female slave, who placed a richly wrought.

Show rooms on D street, between 9th and 10th.

Substitute for pressors.—A method of wall painting (wandmaleres) has been invented at Berlin by a M. Fuchs, which promises to supersede the difficult at fresco process. It is also stated to be much more durable and more adapted to the changes of a northern climate than the Italian method. An experiment was made a year ago to test the power of the colors to resist a very destructive agent, the result of which has just been ascertained. In September, last year, a portrait on stone was painted according to the new process by Kaulbach and given for trial to the director of the Royal Museum. It has ever since been deposited in the chimney exposed to a twelve inouths' smoke, and when recently removed, it was covered by a thick coating of soot, that was only removed with difficulty, but the painting beneath is uninjured and the colors clear and bright.
